Description of Work Unit
The Department of Occupational Therapy is one of eight academic programs in the College of Health and Human Sciences. Colorado State University is Colorado’s land grant institution and holds the Doctoral/Research University – Extensive classification from the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education. Occupational Therapy is ranked 7th in the nation and is focused on a three-part mission of graduate teaching, research and scholarly work and outreach/engagement/service. We are committed to our goal of producing nationally and internationally recognized research programs and graduates that are focused on helping people improve occupational performance and participation, thereby improving their health and quality of life throughout the lifespan. The Department has 150 doctoral students (OTD) or masters OT students (transitioning to the OTD), ~12 Ph.D. students, and ~20 faculty and staff members. Faculty in the Department of Occupational Therapy have a strong commitment to high-quality teaching and advising. and conduct innovative research with an emphasis on translational, and clinical work to improve occupational outcomes and disability. The Department of Occupational Therapy has a strong focus on community engagement and the development of occupational therapists.

Position Summary
Researchers in the Department of Occupational Therapy at CSU are looking for a postdoctoral research fellow in with skills in neuroimaging. fMRI and fNIRS technology will be used in this study. A background in occupational therapy and/or rehabilitation sciences will be helpful. This post-doctoral fellow will support a randomized clinical trial of yoga vs. a control group for people with brain injury. Brain imaging will be completed before and after the intervention. The trials take place at Colorado State University in Fort Collins, Colorado, as well as with community partners throughout Colorado. The postdoctoral fellow’s position will involve, but is not limited to: conducting neuroimaging data collection via fMRI and fNIRS technology, conducting a randomized controlled trial, a yoga intervention, administering assessments to adults with brain injury, data analysis and interpretation, and dissemination of results (via conference abstracts and manuscripts). Responsibilities also include overseeing undergraduate and graduate research assistants and working closely with research coordinators in the recruitment of study participants and data collection. Opportunities for this position include: (i) training in a funded randomized controlled trial for adults with brain injury; (ii) mentorship from expert multi-disciplinary collaborators in the fields of occupational therapy, yoga, and brain imaging at CSU ; (iii) opportunities to be involved in community and healthcare research; (iv) encouragement and mentorship in development of an independent research program, including support for grant-writing (e.g., NIH F32); and (v) clinical contact with individuals with acquired brain injury (i.e. stroke, traumatic brain injury).
